

MENHIR

1983 - 2020 - Giotto Stoppino, Lodovico Acerbis

Description

With a daring approach to materials, the Menhir low table becomes a composition of colors and textures that eloquently illustrate the sculptural simplicity of Lodovico Acerbis and Giotto Stoppino's inventions of new forms. With a Greek-like classicism, the table's column connects the monumental marble base, matte in its contemporary version, to a tabletop newly rendered in lacquered wood or black ash wood and natural walnut, creating a striking exchange between colors and elements. Newly conceived in three different heights, the Menhir low table vaunts a more dramatically-sized round top, and now appears as a tall console as well — a concept from the original designs today in production for the first time. Tops in the Ø 80, 100, 120 cm size and 180x40 for consoles.

Finishings

Base units and tops System of low tables and consoles feature versatility, combination of various shapes, sizes and materials. The base unit is made of epoxy powder-coated steel in black matt finish, available in the following heights: 36.2 - 42.5 - 48.8 for tables and 80.2 for consoles. The tops in the Ø 80, 100, 120 cm size and 180x40 consoles are made of medium density wood fibre, 20 mm thick, worked on the edge. The tops are available in glossy lacquered finishes in burgundy, pink, dark green, mustard yellow, brick red, clay, white and black or in the special inlaid and brushed open grain veneer, in black ash and dark stained walnut. The drums have five different sizes and weights and ring the column, giving the table the necessary weight to guarantee stability and create supporting structures with a differentiated design. Monolithic elements are available in matt marble, in the Carrara Statuario white, Marquinia black, Levanto red and Alpi green finish, a chromatic variety that reveals a typically Italian tradition.
